Lab News

On July 14th, the second part of the Genetic Summer Symposium series was held as part of Dr. Vieira's Craniofacial Genetics class. The event, titled "Oral Health-Systemic Health Conditions," featured a total of 6 speakers, including an introduction by Dr. Vieira. Drs. Ariadne Letra, Renato Silva, Yona Cloonan, Deb Polk, and Bruce Doll all gave insightful and interesting talks about different areas of oral health. The event was a great success, with an audience that included dental students and residents, as well as an incoming 1st year student, several faculty and staff members, and undergraduate students. As an additional part of the Genetics Summer Series, the School of Dental Medicine welcomed two special invited guest lecturers. Dr. Camille Ragin, an Associate Professor in the Department of Epidemiology and Biostatistics at the SUNY Downstate School of Public Health, gave a talk titled "Genetic and Environmental Risk Factors for Head and Neck Cancer" on July 9th. On July 21st, Dr. Piranit Nik Kantaputra came to the school and gave a talk titled "What face and teeth tell you about syndromes." Dr. Kantaputra was visiting the University of Pittsburgh from the Department of Pediatric Dentistry at Chiang Mai University in Thailand. Again, these lectures attracted a number of people that included dental students, residents, faculty, staff, and even SDM patients.

Dr. Vieira and the School of Dental Medicine are very appreciative of all the speakers who participated in the Genetics Summer Series, and for all those who came to learn and participate in these events.
